Dedication

Mrs. Edith Wing Peacock

Hostess and Social Director Emeritus

Widow of the Founder and Member of the Academy Board of Directors

Over many years she has served as "school mother" to thousands of boys who have passed through our Academy portals. Her devotion to their welfare and the friendly interest given their parents when visiting the school have endeared her to Peacock cadets each consecutive term. Although in semi-retirement, she still wields a guiding influence over faculty and students alike.

This 70th anniversary yearbook is respectfully dedicated to her.

Prologue

Seventy years ago, Peacock Military Academy was founded. During the first term, nine boarding students filled the converted residence, which served as the schoolhouse. Through the years, Peacock has grown in stature from its humble beginning of a single building on one lot to a community of fifteen modern structures on twenty acres.

The KADET 1964 will record the seventieth year of that change; each time the book is read, 1964 will Pass In Review once again. We of the yearbook staff, believe that we have done all in our power to make this chronicle of a year as complete as is possible.

May the KADET 1964 serve as an accurate reminder to all of the year it records. The year itself will be recalled as the individual remembers. It is our hope, though, that the book will be remembered simply as an "accurate reminder." To have it so remembered is all anyone could ask.

Reviewing Officers and Inspectors

Col. R. D. Crosby, Chief, ROTC Div., U.S. Continental Army Command; Col. D. W. Peacock, Commandant; Lt. Col. L. W. Bailey, ROTC Div., 4th U.S. Army; Lt. Col. Bill Feltner, Jr., Professor of Military Science, PMA.

Col. Wesley Peacock, Jr., Supt.; Lt. Gen. R. W. Burns, Comdr., ATC, Randolph AFB; Hon. W. W. McAllister, Mayor, San Antonio; Lt. Gen. C. H. Jark, Comdg., 4th U.S. Army; Col. D. W. Eisenhart, Deputy Comdr., Lackland AFB.

The 1964 Peacock Field Band was the best that the Academy has seen in several years. Not only were they characterized by flawless drill, but by good music and unusual cadences. The Band filled the functional post in the Corps as the pace setters, and also managed to be entertaining—an unusual combination, to be sure.

Band passes in review.

After many long weeks of hard work and diligent practice, the final product—a precision drill team—emerged. The team came in mediocre, but left polished. The "Macks" served as one of the best Academy Honor Guards in recent years.

"Macks" move out.

Combat Platoon

Ouch!!

Get over here!!

Don't hit him.

This year the Combat Platoon was the largest unit consisting of a combat patrol, bayonet squad, and a hand-to-hand fighting element. The combat patrol's sham battle with the Zouaves was amazingly realistic. The hand-to-hand element had a spectacular show routine and the bayonet squad's obstacle course was both entertaining and enlightening.

No, the bayonet not the butt.

Oh! My aching back.

Combat Patrol captures the Zouave Castle.

Boy, that barb wire hurts!

Over they go.

Time for that much needed rest.

Zouaves

King Antonio Salute.

This looks familiar.

The Zouave team is a unit unique in the state of Texas, and one of the few such teams in the United States. With their eye-catching uniforms and distinctive cadence, they were a feature of the Peacock parades. They finished their intricate drill routine with a sham battle and an excellent wall scaling demonstration.

Jubilant Kadets

Andrews is momentarily stopped.

In two of the most brilliantly played games of the season, the Kadets routed the Allen Academy Ramblers 24-0 and 17-8. Leading scorers of both games were Keith Taylor, Barry Parker, and Ramon Larios, who kicked a 24 yard field goal.

Victory Over Schreiner

Where's the ball?

A Rebel fumbles.

After an 8-7 victory over the Schreiner Institute Rebels, in an early season game, Peacock's strong defense held the determined Rebel offense to a 12-7 score. Halfbacks Gary Andrews and Barry Parker scored the Kadet touchdowns. Defense was highlighted by Joseph Davila, Bill Stanley and Richard Domotor.

The Peacock Kadets dominated the field in the first Peacock-T.M.I. contest of the year. Led by Barry Parker, Mike Woods, Bill Hyslop and Gerald Smith, the Kadets played with fierce determination throughout the game. However, they were forced to settle for a 6-6 tie. It was T.M.I. who triumphed in the end! Coming from behind in the last quarter of the second game, they defeated the Kadets 35-15.

The Annual Western Dance

We were entertained by Adolph Hofner and his band this year at our annual western dance.

We danced to everything from the bunny hop to the twist.

Bowers and Cindy.

Around-n-round we go.

Bodden and his amigos.

String along with Adolph Hofner.

History in the Making — Snow!

A view we may never see again.

For the first time in eight or nine years it snowed and stayed on the ground. Many of the Cadets had never seen snow before so it was quite an experience for them.

The Annual Government Inspection — Brings an Honor

How much does that carbine weigh, Mister Bradford?

What is leadership, Mister French?

Get those weapons at high port!

Very well executed, Colonel.

The Color Guard moves out.

Each year a team of inspectors, representing the United States Government, inspects the Academy to see if it meets the NDCC standards. We were again rated excellent and permitted to wear the gold star on our right sleeve, as an Honor School.

We are very proud of our boys, Colonel.

What is the purpose of the band? To please Col. Don, Sir.
